

On-site operation of underground optical cable splicing

Overview

To effectively splice OPGW cables, begin by ensuring site safety through the establishment of an equal potential zone, then prepare and straighten the cable, remove the armor to access the fibers, splice the fibers using a fusion splicer, and secure the splice with a heat shrink. To effectively splice OPGW cables, begin by ensuring site safety through the establishment of an equal potential zone, then prepare and straighten the cable, remove the armor to access the fibers, splice the fibers using a fusion splicer, and secure the splice with a heat shrink. Installing fiber optic cables underground involves far more than digging trenches and placing cables. It forms a critical backbone for modern communication networks across both urban and rural environments. Project success depends on careful planning, precise installation practices, and proper. The procedure for preparing OPGW cables for fusion splicing consists of several steps. Different types of optical closures are used. First, a heat-shrink tube is placed over the OPGW cable.
